

ASOUNFOU

SPA MENU

Asounfou is the Berber word meaning 'Relaxation'

For total relaxation please arrive at the spa before your appointment. Enjoy the use of the indoor pool, relax on one of the loungers and enjoy tea from the tea station. Your spa therapist will collect you for your treatment.

Please note that treatment times always include a consultation.

For any advice and to make a booking, please call 688 for the Asounfou Spa Reception, or call 611 for the main Reception who will be more than happy to assist.

HEALTH & SAFETY MEASURES

Our spa offering will be a little limited compared to normal with fewer treatment slots available to ensure we can thoroughly sanitise after each treatment.

For the safety of both our spa therapists and guests, our spa therapist will be wearing a face mask during your spa treatment. Whilst this may well hide their smile, they will most certainly still have smiling eyes!

HAMMAM

The art of wellness in the Moroccan culture

The birth of the Hammam can be traced back to the famous Greek and Roman baths. This practice began in 600 AD under the influence of Mohammed the prophet, who believed the properties of Hammam heat were both healing and rejuvenating. Because of Mohammed's convictions, the practice of the Hammam became associated with religious purification.

The culture around the Hammam remains popular and relevant to this day, even for those living in cities who use it as a space to relax and de-stress.

All the products used in our Hammam treatments are sourced locally and can be purchased after your treatment.

MASSAGE

A large variety to meet the specific needs of everyone

The massage is an intuitive healing art which has been a part of daily life for thousands of years. The origins are often traced back some 4,000 years to a Chinese medical text, the Cong Pu of the Tao Tse, which detailed some of the first recorded massage techniques.

In Western culture, more recent references date back to Hippocrates, around 400BC, who wrote about the medical value of promoting even blood flow around the body.

The Middle Ages were a dark time generally, and massage practices fell out of use at a time when religious practices forbade the touching of others.

Although Swede Pehr Henrik Ling is often credited with being the founder of the modern massage, he specialised more in the field of physical education, and his 'Swedish Movement System' has been conflicted with Dutch practitioner Johan Georg Mezger who actually classified the techniques.

Regardless of the origins, there are now around 70 distinct massage techniques practised around the world, from stone to Californian to pregnancy to reflexology and Reiki (to name just a few)!

INTENSIVE MOROCCAN MASSAGES

Our intensive massage treatments are aimed at the deeper tissue structures of the muscle and fascia, also called connective tissue, to release chronic muscle tension or "knots" (also known as "adhesions").

Throughout the treatment "trigger" pressure points are worked on in conjunction with deeper moves, all of which are designed to release the pressure within the muscles.

Intensive massage treatments often involve the use of forearms and elbows throughout the routine.

Our therapists are trained in these specialised techniques and use specific Moroccan Glee Naturals products, designed to work in conjunction with the movements.

The Eve Branson Foundation (EBF) was spearheaded by Richard's mum and has been helping those in the Berber communities surrounding Kasbah Tamadot since 2005. The aim is to offer long-term support by setting up sustainable initiatives such as artisanal training programmes in woodworking, embroidery, weaving and a dedicated craft shop, all managed by Amazigh (Berber) people. Working hand in hand with EBF for a mission we deeply care for, we will be donating 15% of the proceeds from these spa treatments:
